Robust Public Transportation Services Improve Community Health

Numerous studies have shown that community investment in public transit:

- Encourages people to rely on health promoting alternative modes of transportation (e.g. walking & cycling)
- Reduces traffic collisions and emissions
- Increases physical fitness and mental health
- Provides access to medical care and healthy food

Public Transit Service Providing a Vital Link to Non-Emergency Medical Care

For some people, public transportation provides the only means for accessing health care appointments and other human service benefits.

Fighting Isolation

Public transportation, mobility enhancement programs and the road to recovery

The Benefits of Community Integration

- Family relations and social contacts
- Work options
- Economic independence
- Educational Advancement
- Cultural enrichment
- Recreation

Transportation is the vital link to all of the benefits of community. Therefore, transportation is at the very heart of community integration, as well as recovery.

Common Barriers Related to Transportation
